Charlotte Country Day School
1440 Carmel Rd.
Charlotte, N.C. 28226 (366-1241)

The Facts

Check us out - we don't need a four A football team, or a graduating class of 500, we've got Country Day! There comes a point in time in everyone's life when he or she must learn the facts of life! Going to school is one of the first. From the day we first entered preschool and were faced with twenty other terrified and tear-stained faces. we learned that at Country Day you were never alone! There was always someone there to share your SAT score, your not quite perfect paper, your skinned knee, or your weekend date! Life's rough, but we got by with a little help from our friends!

Potato chips, popcorn, french fries, and Angelo's chocolate chip cookies add that extra something that can make our day worthwhile! In the morning we check in to check out our social lives, "Who likes whom?", "Who went where?", and "Who did what!?" On any given day, you can hear someone screaming across campus to check up on the latest gossip!

Horsin' around with one leg off the ground, Junior Christopher Thigpen catches a ride from Sophomore Becky Helms, tripped up by Junior Harvey Grasty.

Of Life

Students stay up until the early hours studying for a test, spend weekends in the library writing a term paper, months preparing for an exam, and endless hours practicing for a play or sport, but students still find time for secretly chewing gum, sneaking food and drinks into the Learning Center, passing notes, sleeping in study hall, and sneaking out to lunch on the day the cafeteria serves spinach!

Could it be that when the Soviets downed the Korean airliner, they accidentally hit half the Senior Lounge, leaving the "Senior Closet" for the rising Seniors! With the smaller size there was less floor space for the usual Senior trash-crumpled homework assignments, empty Mountain Dew cans, and Burger King wrappers, but as 1984 rolled around, C. D. Seniors had to watch out for the local "Big Brother", Upper School Dean, Mr. Ball! Mr. Ball tried his best to keep the lounge clean, but often his pleas were drowned by the blaring of the "Talking Heads"!

Charlotte Country Day School revolves around unique people, who together learn to understand the foreign accents of many foreign students, conquer the mystery of a perfect term paper, and enjoy a Friday evening in Freedom Park dancing to the Spongetones! Check us out!

THIS IS THE LIFE

Charlotte Country Day are no hallways, the under-School not only has the finest teachers and handpicked most air conditioned hallways of any school around. The Upper and Lower School campus differs from other schools in one particular way: all of the classrooms open to the outside. There are no hallways. On aunny days, in from class to class the spring and fall, students get the advantages of lying out in the sun at lunchtime and free periods, or breathing a little fresh air in between classes. In the winter and on rainy days it can be more of a disadvantage. Since there

Each day at 9 00 the buses loaded up, and headed toward UNCC. Mr. Ball and Mrs. Erwin, the sponsors, organized and planned the entire event, and were very proud of its success. Despite the rainy weather, the students as well as the athletes managed to have a warm and loving experience. Not only was the day a rewarding undertaking, but the Juniors got to go home early. The Juniors felt that by taking on this project they were able to leave good memories with many people.

Bows of holly seemed only part of the decorations in the Cannon Campus Gym early on that December 16th morning in 1983. Ornamented trees, festive wreaths, cheerful poinsettias, and artwork of Lower Schoolers also enhanced the crowded gym. The "decked" gym seemed physically for Christmas Breakfast, however, students, teachers, and parents seemed emotionally set for the December holiday. Aside from traditional decorations, apples played a main role. They represented centerpieces on all the tables, but the most unique apples turned out as ornaments on the Christmas tree in the lobby. Every senior received an apple ornament with his or her name painted on it. While Monogram Club members parked cars, Aquilifer girls served biscuits and danishes provided by the cafeteria during this annual breakfast sponsored by the Parent's Council. Christmas Breakfast offers a magical moment of love shared between members of the rapidly growing Country Day family.

script, a final makeup check, and the curtain opened. The audience saw a show equaled
by few others at Country Day

Behind the scenes, more than met the eye took place. Endless hours of tiresome practice turned an inexperienced cast into experienced actors and actresses. Along with these many hours of practice, encouragements, criticism and praise came from an experienced director, Mr. Rob Williams. Working on set design and lights took up a major portion of Saturdays for the cast and Mr. Koraly, who helped with set construction. These hours and many frustrated tears showed that the cast and others involved really cared about making "The Curious Savage" a play to remember.

hat a feeling" the Girls' Choir created this year! For the spring performance, they sang songs from the movie "Flashdance". In the Christmas program some of the songs included "Twas the Night Before Christmas". "Snow", and "Christmas Blessing". The Girls' Choir consisted mostly of ninth grade girls

The Mixed Choir was "mixed" not only in the ages and voices of the singers, but also in the many changes that occured this year. The choir was considerably smaller than it had been in previous years Another "mix up" or difference in this year's choir was that the students chose the music they sang. Formerly, Mr Lowry had chosen the music. The students picked more popular music. They sang contemporary Christmas carols for the Christmas program and songs from Neil Diamond, Simon and Garfun kel, and Lionel Ritchie for the spring program. Although the Mixed Choir was smaller this year, the singers liked being able to choose their music

The fall performances included a concert in the Bandshell at Freedom Park along with a concert at the Honorary Quail Hollow Country Club In the spring, the Pieces of Eight toured the Raleighschools. Another interesting detail about the Show Choir is the origin of their name, The Pieces of Eight. Since our mascot is a Buccaneer, the Show Choir decided they should have a name relative to a "Buc" Buccaneers were gentry. They preyed upon Spanish fleets in the time of Queen Elizabeth. One of the year, so most everyone will be items they searched for was returning to make next year's pieces of eight, which were band ever better gold coins. So the Show

IS THERE LIFE AFTER 3:25?

AS STUDENTS WORK, PLAY AND WATCH THE TUBE!

For many students the stay did not end at 3:25. Many headed for sports activities, after school jobs, or home to watch the soaps. Many people worked with their fathers, and others worked at restaurants such as Burger King, Dikadees, and T.K Tripps Senior Sarah Jane Smith, who worked at T.K Tripps as a hostess said, "Working has taught me how to get along with other people."

Although most of the un derclassmen do not have after school jobs, many find their afternoons filled with other activities such as sports teams. Sophomore Elizabeth Byne said, "Sports take up a lot of time, but are worth the effort."

The Bost-to-Tourtellot touchdown pass gave the Bucs a 20-14 lead at the half.

In the second half, the Bucs shut out Enfield while scoring 26

"I was suprised by the second half," said Cook, "Enfield has a reputation for coming on strong in the second half."

The Bucs made It 26-14 midway through the third quarter on a 15yard run by Todd Townsend. Townsend carried the ball pine times for 30 yards.

The Bucs' John Graham, who intercepted an Enfield pass early in the game, recovered an Enfield fumble minutes later on the opponent's 18-yard line, setting up a 2yard touchdown run by Yates Pharr two plays later.

In the fourth quarter, David Dixon ran on a sweep play without being touched by a

The J.V. boy's football team ended it season with a stunning victory. The finished with a record of five losses and one win, but some of the impairment wadue to the size of the players and the number of injuries

This year, the team was smaller that usual. There were twelve seventh graders five eighth graders and fourteen nint graders. Since the team was so little, it had to change its offense. Instead a carrying the ball, the team used passing as its main strategy. Because there were so many seventh graders, a "seventh grade team" was formed consisting of twelve seventh graders and two eightle graders. This team played Latin's seventh-grade team three times and tied them 7-7 in the last game

the first two games

Henry Adkins was an outstanding player, even though he was out for the first four games. "He was my whole offense - between him and Edison Cassels," remarked Coach Stack. Henry scored sixteen out of twenty-two points in the last game; two touchdowns, two field goals, and one two-point conversion. Also of his touchdown passes scored during the year were thrown by Mark Hosmer.

ALL THE WAY TO STATE

n November third, the Varsi ty Soccer team was on the road to Durham, North Carolina for the state tournament. This event was something that the team had been waiting for a long time. The first game was Friday, November fourth, and it was a clear victory for the Bucs when they defeated Durham Academy 1-0. The big challenge came the next day when they faced Ravenscroft, a team from Raleigh Even though the Bucs lost, they still felt happy. One player had this to say about the tournament, "Who's upset We're only second in the entire state"

The 1983 team had a positive attitude, even after losses. Coach, Bob Doherty, who was new to the team this year, was reaponable for the team's exceptional attitudes. He filled the team with determination to win, and they did just that. They finished the season with a record of 16-8-1. The Bucs won the conference tournament after stomping Charlotte Latin and Providence Day. They also won the district tournament by defeating Forsyth Country Day and Charlotte Latin. Even though the J.V. Soccer team lost many of its players to the Varsity team, it did not affect their season. Continuing the tradition for the third consecutive year, they remained undefeated in conference games. David Silverman led the team with eleven goals.

The most memorable game in Jennifer Ferro's opinion was "The Monkey Business Game." During one game Monkey Business paid a visit to Bonnie Harris. Her mother, who was responsible for the unexpected surprise, wrote "Only 365 more days till YOU can drive the carpool."

Kathy Brookshire's favorite part of playing on the team was the trip to Durham. There was plenty of time for socializing on the bus, but the highlight of the trip was beating Durham Academy. According to Coach Leesa Pepper, the girls looked forward to the Durham Game because it was the longest trip of the year, and the outcome was an anticipated win

Kathryn Anderson, Emily Ayscue, and Julie Brittain were voted to the CISSA first team, and Julie Brittain and Maria Vasquez earned places on the East Cooper All-tournament team. Skill, as well as comraderie helped to guide the team. After winning the district tournament, the team tied for third place in the state tournament

At the end of the season, Ellen Ranson received the Coaches Award for her outstanding contributions to the team, on and off the court Sandee Smith earned the Most Improved Award for her remarkable gains in her first year of volleyball But, each player, no matter what her skill level, contributed to the unity and comraderie which made this team a real team.

The JV Vollevball team had an up and down season. With only one returning player, even hard work could not always outweigh inconsistency.

According to Freshman Lisa Pignetti, the highlight of the season was hosting the JV Play Day. She explained that all of the conference teams came to the Carmel Campus where they were broken down into new teams on which no more than two players could be from the same original team. "There was no winner, but it was fun, just the same"

At the close of the season, Lisa Pignetti and Elizabeth Dixon were voted Most Valuable Player and Most Improved Player. In the words of Coach Mills, the team was "a congenial group of people" who "worked well together."

Hard Work Paid Off!

Hard work and well-balanced talent produced a season of twelve wins and six losses for the Junior Varsity boys' basketball team. They were led by six Sophomorea and two outstanding Freshmen. The Sophomores included Steven Klein, Brent Lane, Yates Pharr, Beau Stoneman, Danny Meltsner, and Taylor Welton, and the Freshmen were Connor Bost and Parker Drew. Coach Kevin Daly showed his pleasure for the team when he commented "I've been here three years and they are the hardest working group I've had in those years."

Another hard-working team was the Junior High boys' basket-ball team. Much effort showed in their record of six wins and seven losses. They finished the season second in the Conference, behind Providence Day.

As proved by these two teams, hard work pays of?

Hard Work; Good Times

hat goes on in the locker room, behind the scenes, often tells as much about a team as game play. Energetic chatter and friendly talk filled the locker room before each Girls Varsity Basketball practice and game. While some teams struggle with off-the-court quarrels, this team held together in the bad times and strengthened during the good times. Junior Sandee Smith commented, "We have a good time together."

Some of the closeness within the team surely resulted from Coach Frosch's willingness to talk individually with the players, as well as her ability to prod players into contributing to the good of the whole team. Her "team before I" philosophy consistently won respect and hard work from the team members. That hard work paid off in the long sought victory over Latin at the end of the season

Senior Mary Brand was voted onto the all-conference team, suggesting that talent, as well as hard work, characterized the CD team. Mary was also voted Most Valuable Player and Elizabeth Byne was voted Most Improved. Through good times and bad times, the Girl's Varsity Basketball Team members held together for a tough season.

The J.V. Girls' Baskethall team ended the season "even-steven" with seven wins and seven losses

Team captain Graham Shannonhouse led the girls with ninetynine points and was voted most valuable player. Cindy Tice, a newcomer to the team, had the most rebounds with sixty-four

Out of the seven successful games, the biggest win was over St. Gabriels by more than twenty points.

A new twist was added to the games this year: each contest was dedicated to a different player on the team, giving the girls incentive to win for a teammate

The team sported many new players including Pebbles Glenn who was named the most improved player for the season. "It was a young team, and good," reported Ms. Mills, "I have high expectations for next year."

fter ending the season with a record 14 and 2, the wrestling team atood well in the final tournament. John Hosmer, Will Allen, Hayes Harris, Andy Baron and Brian Butler all placed first in the tournament with the rest of the team following close behind. These wins were partly a result of the energy absorbed at the annual breakfast - before - the tournament prepared by Kim Stack, wife of coach Rick Stack, and managera Jenna Randolph and Paige Ford. When asked about the season, Coach Stack said," I am pleased with the results and efforts of the boys."

Dance The Might

The Dance Company was probably the most unusual team at Country Day. A group of eleven students got together after school, Monday through Thursday, from 3:30 until 5:30 and danced, danced, danced! An Evening of Dance, which was on March 30th and 31st, was the result of three months of hard work.

The group was "coached" by Mayreese Koraly and Melissa Pope. Krissie Hein, Micki Upchurch, and Rob Williams contributed to the choreographing of the dances. "We had a group of really hard workers who handled themselves responsibly and professionally," reported Ms. Pope.

To stay in shape, the group had a class once a week which started off with a warm-up, and continued with technique and movement improvement. Even before the "season" began, the students got a taste of working in a group and helping each other. Tryouts involved getting instructions from the judges as a group and performing together. When the practices started, they learned to work "independently as a group". Added Ms. Pope, "If one member has a problem, she will go to another member to get help in working it out."

The most original team in the Country Day sports family had an interesting season that separated it from the rest of the crowd

CCDS Goes International

Language Day was handled quite differently this year from previously. The competition between the language clubs was eliminated because the faculty felt that the competition promoted too much rivalry

The clubs did not compete in a volleyball game this year, because the Board of Directors as well as the language department members felt that it had nothing to do with each specific language

However, some students and teachers felt that when the competition was eliminated, the enthusiasm was lost Francine Terrell believed, "It was not as exciting this year because there was not a competition." Mr. Robinson felt that the skits this year were very good but that there was a lack of enthusiasm. Next year he hopes to restore some of the enthusiasm without promoting excessive competition

This year the International Club joined the French, Spanish, and Latin Clubs in the festivities. Each club performed a skit in its native language.

At the end of the program all the clubs came together to sing "America the Beautiful". The Language Department does not believe that the competition will be brought back next year; however, they hope some of the enthusiasm will return.

egend!" The title is reserved for such example, when school opened the Seniors

Mrs. Cox's interests do not end with the school, she has helped to involve the Senior class in sponsoring the Special Olympics, visiting the Magnolia's Rest Home, and aiding the poor during the winter

With a flair for excitement, Mrs Cox helped to chaperone the Senior class trip to New York Cityl, When "Luke Spencer" (Tipny Geary) was spotted in Mama Leoni's, Mrs Cox giggled with the rest of the girls

These endearing characteristics have poinsettia sale, and the bird seed sale, none bound the Senior class to Mrs. Cox. so in gratitude the class of '84 threw a surprise party in her honor in September. Mrs. Cox

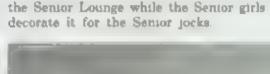

> "You made my day! You made my year!

The apple of our aye, Mrs. Cox and sensor Shelly

As a young kid beginning school I remember my pet dog, best friends, and the secret wish at Christmas

While a teenager I remember friends from Carmel Academy who helped me to grow and made me realize we cannot always have everything

Yet being sixteen I recall learning how to drive my aports car and wondering if I would ever learn not to let out the clutch without giving it gas. Now seventeen and a senior I have made new friends and have a boyfriend at my side to make this year special and a prize memory.

My only wish if it comes true Would be to spend my life with you I give my heart and all my love If you will only love me too ... PS-Edie Rabbitt

There are times in everyone's life when we feel hurt or alone, but I feel that these times when we feel lost and all around us seems to be falling apart, are really bridges of growth

We struggle and try to recapture the security of what was, but, almost in spite of ourselves, we emerge on the other side with a new understanding, a new awareness, a new strength

It is almost as though we must go through the pain and struggle in order to grow and reach new heights. Sue Mitchell every junior class: to execute a prem that exceeded all before The Grade Council attended several band showcases at Park Center but none of those bands suited the majority of the Juniors' and Seniors' "desired music" as indicated in a poll. As a last resort, three members of the class, Robert Mitchener, John Collias, and Bruce Walker drove to Duke University to attend a dance at the Moose Lodge sponsored by the Delta Tai Delta Fraternity House and discovered "the band!" In addition to finding a band, the entire class had to agree on a theme. Juniors voted to leap the wall to the Orient after considering "Heaven" and "Jungle" as other possibilities.

his year the class of '87 wanted to get involved and that is just what they did. The freshmen class took on a 4 year project to help W.T.V.I. (a local public television station). They did such things as addressing envelopes, answering telephones, and eventually "going on the air" during the W.T.V.I Kids Club Telethon.

The long term committment made this service project very important to the freshman class.

SLAVES ... FOR A DAY!

Freshmen for sale! That was the call on December second when freshmen class members were auctioned to 10th, 11th, and 12th graders. This unusual sale helped to raise money for the freshmen class.

Freshman auctioneer Banks McClintock sold the slaves to the highest bidders. On December ninth the slaves had to do literally whatever their buyers wanted them to do during lunch and in between classes. The only real rule was that the buyers were responsible for their slaves' actions. Therefore, the slaves were not asked to do anything too unreasonable.

Slave day was just one of the many events that helped the freshmen class to raise money and have fun at the same time

"Do I have two dollars?" Auctioneer Banks McClintock takes bids from upper schoolers interested in buying "slaves" on Slave Day. The highest bid for a slave was $20.00

WE HAVE GOT THE MOST!

Spirit, spirit! This is just what the freshmen class had this year! After taking the spirit week title from the juniors (who have won since their freshmen year) the ninth grade felt proud and worthy. Each student contributed to the success by attending the games during spirit week, yelling the loudest during pep rallies, and creating posters and signs. Freshman Anna Walsh was the head of the spirit week committee and organized the various plans that enabled the freshmen to win the title

Although the ninth graders did not get to miss a day of school as did winners in previous years, they did receive Cokes and doughnuts during their free periods one morning. But, the real prize was the honor of knowing that they had won!

PEP CLUB PARTY

he eighth grade is an exceptionally spirited grade. One way in which they show their spirit is by having a pep club. This is for spirited members of their class. They had a party in the gym of the Carmel campus at the beginning of this year for all the members of the pep club with music and an air band contest. The members of the winning air band each received an album. There was a male homecoming court nominated just for the fun of it. The four guys from the eighth grade that were nominated

M&M SALE

To raise money for dances and for the student council, the seventh and eighth graders took the task of selling boxes of M&M's. Each of the seventh and eighth graders received ten boxes of M&M's, five peanut and plain. There was a date assigned when all ten boxes would have to be sold Anyone that reached this goal received an ice cream sundae.

Helping the Needy

In order for the eighth graders to show their concern for the community, they collected money for Doc. Terry, a man whose house burned down. Students raised money by holding bake sales and donating one dollar or more each. This project included fellow middle and upper school students. This money was collected by homerooms and a check was presented to one of Doc. Terry's friends. Television coverage of this heart-warming experience aroused public awareness

SCHOOL-IN-THE-WOODS

The eighth graders took a trip to Camp Thunderbird in September Schoolfor in-the-Woods. Responsible decision-making was the theme of their experience. "The big thing this year was that the eighth graders got to go sailing," said Vanessa Fadial. Nightime activities included a dance with tapes played by teachers. The eighth graders learned how to write checks and balance a checking account. Another of their activities included assigned locations to find using a compass. This experience succeeded in giving the eighth graders an insight to life beyond school.

Funds for Fun

During the fall term, the seventh grade was faced with the task of raising money. So, they had an M & M sale Each student received ten boxes of M & Ms, plain and peanut. Those who sold all of their boxes were rewarded with an ice cream party. These profits paid for dances as well as other events outside of the regular school curriculum.

Who Waits for Summer?

On Monday, October 3, the seventh grade class headed out to Camp Thunderbird to experience School-In-The-Woods. Upon arrival at the camp, students were assigned to cabins and groups in which they were to stay during the three day period of activities and learning. During the trip, the students had a dance, went canoeing, rode the zipwire, had discussions on foreign culture, and experimented with video work. They also built kites and had a contest to see whose kite would fly the longest. The weary students arrived home on Thursday, October 6, from an event that would be long remembered

AFRICAN ADVENTURE

Dehool-in-the-Woods was planned ear her in the year than in past years. Carol Morris, the sixth grade coordinator, felt that this was an advantage because it provided a casual atmosphere where the sixth graders could "get to see everybody again and meet new people." The theme of school-in-the-woods this year was Africa. This theme was carried through in many activities. African dancers performed for the class. According to Mrs. Morris, the performance was "somewhat of a disappointment because it was too short."

They also made African masks. One of the most popular activities was tie-dying. Leigh Ann Hawkins especially enjoyed tie-dying because she liked the blue shirt she made. On the whole, school-in-the-woods was "better than last year" according the Wendy Jacobs

The pep club sponsored a pep club party. There was a Buccaneer court, music and air band exhibitions. The pep club played a very active part in apirit on the middle school campus

Timmerman's Talented Team

Activities filled the year for the Fourth Grade. They participated in many exciting activities, the most special being a trip to our state capital, Raleigh, N.C. Leaving about 6:00 A.M., they traveled by Trailways bus and spent the entire day in the city. They visited the Governor's Mansion, the Art Museum, the Capitol Building, and the Museum of History

In December, they presented a Christmas program focused on the December traditions in North Carolina. They studied the traditions from the English, French, Moravian, and African cultures. They sang carols, spirituals, and even choreographed their own dance. Senior Shelly Mendel taught the fourth graders a Jewish dance

Another event in the Fourth Grade was a field trip to the Asheboro zoo. They spent the whole day observing the many attractions

Also, each student prepared a speech for the traditional speech contest. Many hours of preparation were spent memorizing these speeches. The usual nervousness and stage-fright were felt by the Fourth Graders

With 5 Fourth Grade sections, the grade activities helped to maintain unity and closeness.

Sellers' Sensational Students

Sellers' Sensational Students were a cripie case of Fourth Graders They participated in many unusual and educational activities. One of these was a "Garfield Excuse Book". Garfield was a member of their class and the keeper of the excuse book. "Students entered excuses in this book that even Garfield can't believe?" said teacher Janie Sellers

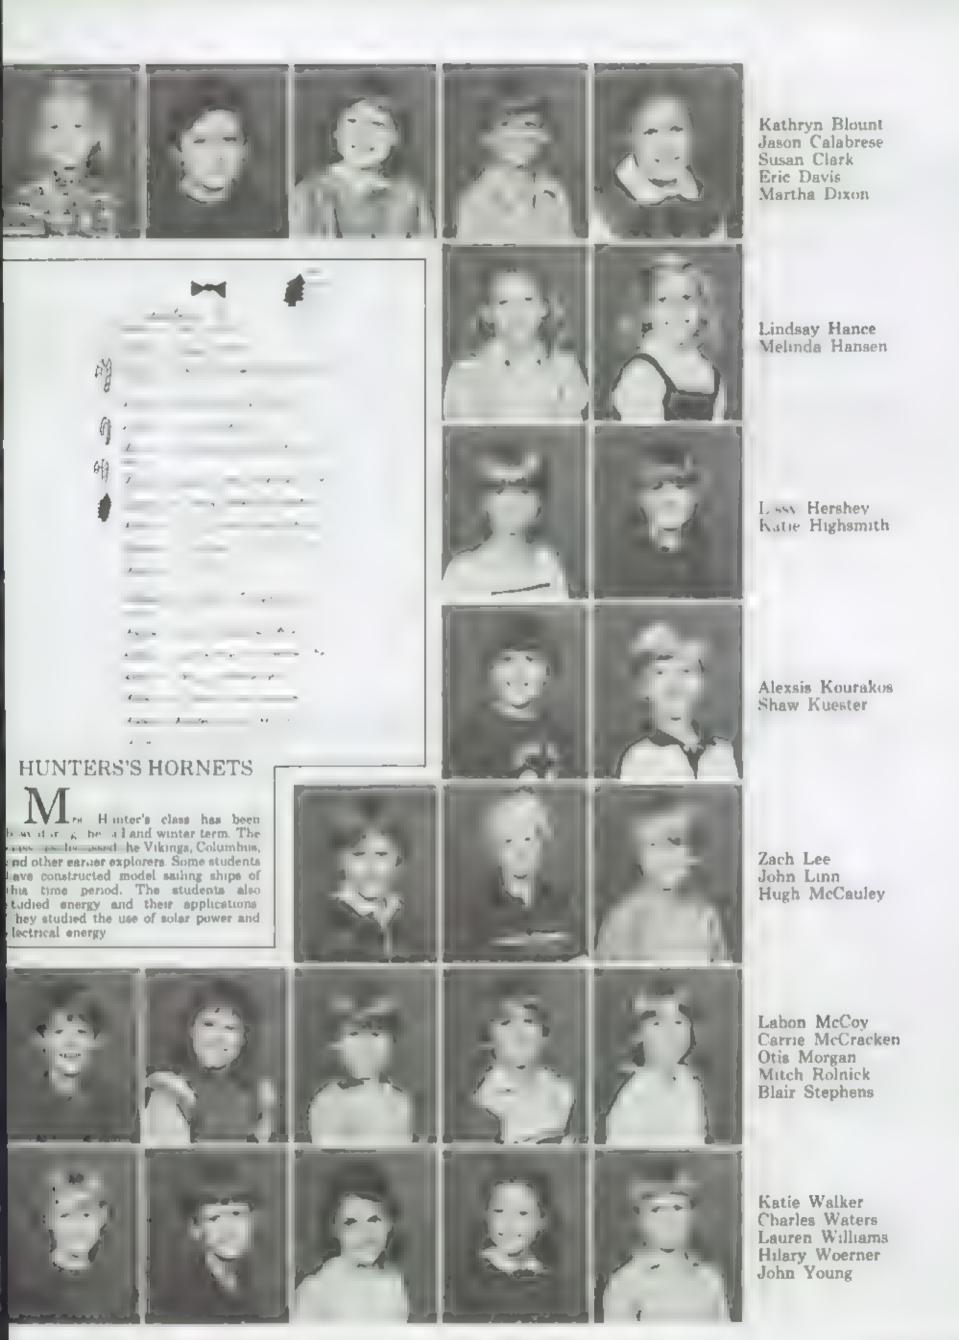

Another activity that was unique to this class was the "Read In" Every Thursday, for 30 minutes, there was a silent, relaxed time for reading only During this time, the students could lie on the heaters, stretch out on the floor, prop feet on desks, or sit however they were most comfortable

The class' grademother, Mrs. Sawyer, proved to be a favorite aspect of the year. As the students commented "No one could have a better grademother than we do. She is siways bringing its surprises!" She made their fourth grade year a special one

The best gift given to Mrs. Sellers' fourth grade class was their grademother. Mrs. Sawyer

"You've Come A Long Way Baby!"

For many CCDS teachers, work doesn't end at 3:30 p.m. Within the last year or so, Julie Shaw, Marlene Jacoby, Mayreese Koraly, and Marsha Newton-Graham have had children. When asked what their children do during the school day, many teachers said that they had babysitters, friends, or neighbors who came into their homes and took care of their children, while others put their infants in a day-care program.

Therefore, unlike popular belief, many teachers' lives DO go beyond the classroom setting'

UNITY IN DIVERSITY ...

September 24th was the long-swaited day in which 110 faculty and administrative personnel from the Lower, Middle, and Upper Schools, gathered together at the Howard Johnson's motel in North Myrtle Beach. It was a time for "Growth and Renewal," as well as an opportunity to share and discuss each other's thoughts and ideas. The central theme of the retreat was 'Community; Different Styles, Same Goals'

The conference began with the address of Dr Cvnthia Tyson, Vice President of Academic Affairs at Queens College. She spoke on the values of an academic community and the importance of respecting diversity in teaching and learning styles

By the end of the weekend, the faculty members were able to identify and appreciate the differences found in the CCDS school community, as well as to analyze their own individual preferences in style and teaching methods

Faculty vs. Varsity

In October, the girls' Varsity Volleyball team faced one of their toughest opponents all year, the faculty volleyball team. Deborah Mills, Garry Sullivan, Rhea Caldwell, Mary Karen Vellines, Stan Fri, Walter Lockhart, Betsy Howard, Ed Walton, and David Offill, just to name a few, gave it their all in this exciting match. The cheerleaders, Nancy Cox, Florence Chapman, and John Cook cheered the team on to an even tie with the Varsity. The spikes of Richard Terry and Gil Webb together with Ed Kelly's historical serve that scored six consecutive points made them valuable players. Richard Terry modestly stated, "We were awesome." He went on to add, "It was a lot of fun" the students got to see a side of us they never had before."

t Country Day, the health office was a popular place to be, whether you were really sick or just trying to get out of a test next period! Nurse Shirley Lave at the Cannon Campus and Nancy Lipscomb at Carmel were always kept busy. They both agreed that Mondays were by far the busiest day of the week. "They just can't make it on Mondays," stated Ms Lipscomb, "They're worn out after the weekend!" This year, January was a heavy month for sickness, with the flu and other viruses going around. On one day in January, fifty students from the Lower and Upper School came to the nurse's until 3:10 p.m.

brought to the nurse were skinned knees and elbows Middle schoolers com plained of headaches and sore throats. Headaches were also the most frequent complaint of students and teachers in the Upper School. Both nurses cited fractures, head injuries, and cuts requiring stitches as the most severe problems they had to deal with

Nurse Shirley Laye remembered two Lower Schoolers who came to her with unusual problems. One little boy had a splinter in his derriere. Another came in with a loose tooth hang mg by a thread, and when Ms. Lave asked him if he wanted her to pull it, he office starting at 8:30 in the said "You don't have any morning and continuing Band-Aids for your mouth to hold a tooth back in, do

TESTING 1, 2, 3 ... TESTING

From admission tests to college boards, Country Day students are always being tested. Prospective kindergarten students were tested and interviewed at the age of 4 or 5. In addition to taking an intelligence test, the children were given a visual exam (looking at and interpreting pictures) and were asked to hop and skip to test their motor skills Their maturity and development were evaluated in interviews. In addition to being asked questions like "Where is your elbow?" and "How are a clock and a calendar alike?", some students were asked who Christopher Columbus was Jacoui Bivens, who works in the admis sions office, told of one little boy's response to that question. According to Ms. Bivens, after being taken to his interview by John Briggs, the Lower School guidance counselor, the little boy said, "Sure, I know who Columbus is, he's the man that just brought me down stairs." Older children coming to Country Day were required to take ERB tests and were interviewed by a faculty member. In some cases, the prospective students were interviewed by the Dean

This year test calendars were posted in the snack bar and the faculty lounge. This method, sponsored by the Student Council, ensured that Upper School students had no more than two major tests a day. Student Council President Henry Pharr commented on the effective ness of this system: "This new calendar will provide better communication between the students and the teachers, in the event that a test conflict arises."

The State of North Carolina requires standardized testing in grades 1, 2, 3, 6. 9 and 11. Country Day chooses to give the ERB test because it offers a more fair comparison for students at Country Day When a student reaches his Junior year he is required to take the PSAT to prepare him for the SAT to be taken toward the end of his Junior year and the beginning of his Senior year

From admission tests to college boards, students become accustomed to being tested. When they graduate from Country Day they will be prepared to handle the pressure of college future careers'

I Get By With A Little Help From My Friends!

A special aspect of the students at Country Day was their willingness to help others. Walking across campus, it wasn't rare to find one student helping another. Whether close friends or not, students were always willing to help their buddies. Many programs were set up so students could aid students. and even help teachers This year the seniors were able to proctor study hall so that they could practice responsibility and take a load off the teachers. The seniors decided to do this to show their leadership skills Another way students asaisted other students was tutoring. If a student was having trouble in a class, the teacher would recommend a student tutor Students volunteered because they wanted to help their friends

Some students worked with the Lower School in programs such as French Internship. This year Gins Rockey helped as an aide for Monsieur Loiseau, the Lower School French teacher. The first half of the term she observed a first grade class, and the second half she taught the class herself.

Students helping other students at Country Day was just another aspect that made the school so special

C.D. AROUND THE WORLD

Through students and faculty, the International program at Country Day was very successful in 1983 84

Students such as International Club president Barbara Hoecklin used their knowledge and experiences of other countries to help C.D give a warm welcome to International students. Advisor to the International club, Mme. Shumake stated, "The International club, although it hasn't grown very big yet, gives students with English as a second language a chance to understand American high school life." The International Club did such things as read the daily bulletins to keep up on daily events of Country Day and Charlotte. Other than by establishing the International Club. Country Day helped foreign students by providing a good tutoring program for non-English speakers.

For Upper Schoolers who were interested in learning about other countries, Country Day made available such programs as "School Year Abroad" and "Woodberry Forest in Britain"

Mr. Lockhart, co-ordinator of the International program, spoke of Country Day's "foreign affairs": "C.D.'s International program is good because we are really making an effort and we can see results."

t's just for fun," chided Mary Todd, ferring to the Shakespeare evening classes she tught to an eclectic group of people. Her articipants were mostly parents and faculty, though some chose this program after stening to Todd speak on Shakespeare in the mmunity. In her ninth set of courses, Mrs odd began her once a week sessions with a cture on Shakespeare's background and life Line by line," the group read one of the asterpiece plays, she said, and then Country ay treated them to the video taped movie ersion.

Country Day provided several other pordinate programs, as well. Students from the ower and Middle Schools, which closed earlier can the Upper School, remained at school for variety of activities. What started four years to with only a handful of students staying til 3:30 with Miss Nash and Mrs. Richardson is blossomed into twenty-five to thirty udents remaining until 5:30. This year the roup was so large that it branched into three roups. Country Day parent Kay Brennan loked after the Kindergarteners, whose ternoons were filled with art projects such as making snowflakes and circus figures, watching movies, and the most popular, playing charades. The Mile Club was for all the Kindergarteners who jogged after school. After they accumulated twenty-five miles, they each received two wristbands. "It's good for their muscles and hearts," emphasized Mrs. Brennan after the "munchkins" finished jogging on a cold afternoon. One of the highlights of an afterschool Kindergarteners' week was receiving a Happygram: "If you jogged a mile, read a book, or did a good deed, you got one," stated Mrs. Brennan. Life, Monopoly, and Battleship were several of the games played by the afterschool students from grades 1 through 3, who were looked over by Miss Nash. Right after school was dismissed, the kids had a recess period to disperse some of their energy. After the recess was homework time, which ended with juice and cookies. Monopoly especially pleased the kids on those rainy days. For older students who had to remain after school, Mr Gerard Loiseau emphasized homework first to his "children" who stayed in the Learning Center most of the time. into competition at the University of North with the photographic aspect of the book sheek it out! This year thirteen Carolina. The 1983 Postscript finished in third undred copies of the 1984 Postscript hit the place for overall quality and in second place in the photographic division

Many changes occurred in Postacript this year With the addition of the Apple IIe word processor, all copy was stored, corrected, and printed, saving It was py where here of real term hours of fighting over the typewriter. The use of rule lines, large initial letters in copy, and hold faced lead-ins for captions were added as well. The largest addition to the Postscript was the Minimag, which was filled with current events and facts dditional information. After great debate, the The 1984 Postscript staff extends a special some, "The Annual Check Up" was developed thanks to Jerre Bridges (photography editor), uring the summer of 1983 at the Hemlock Haven Wendy Hart, Jon Brady, and Mark Weir, our vanced yearbook workshop in Virginia. The photographers, As well, thank you to Mrs. Gretchen Allen, Mr. Tony White, Mr. Westson Burts, Mr. For the first time Postscript was entered in David Botand, and Mr John Gass, for their help
